

Broadway Will Display Couturier Coats Oct. 8

A major fashion event makes headlines this week as the Broadway Southern California introduces an exclusive collection of couturier coats, adapted from top European fashion designers.

For the second year, the Broadway's coat buyer, Stanley Bernstein, has attended fashion openings in Paris and Florence with the intent purpose of developing coat styles for Southern California women. From Europe's foremost couturiers, Bernstein selects styles which can be copied line-for-line or adapted to comprise a fashion group suitable for southland wear. The Broadway imports these celebrated designs and recreates them locally in domestic fabrics.

The 1962 European import collection bears such high fashion signatures as Lanvin, Monsieur X, Nina Ricci, and Simonetta and Fabiani. Capturing casual elegance which keynotes the fashion picture this fall, the 15 different styles are made of handsome lightweight woolens, cashmere, leathers and even fake-furs.

Bernstein will commutate a showing of the complete import coat collection at the Broadway Del Amo on Monday, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m.
